

Marcel Broodthaers (Brussels 1924 - Cologne 1976)

N/A

Mon livre d'ogre. Suite de récits poétiques 1957

Letterpress.

250 x 168 mm (copies on Auvergne), 210 x 159 mm (copies on Vélin).

44 pp., wrappers.

This is number is C on Japanese paper in an edition of:

- 3 copies on China paper, not for sale (H.C.).
- 5 copies on Japanese paper (A-E).
- 25 copies on Auvergne (1-25).
- 150 copies on Vélin (26-176).

The first 33 copies with as frontispiece an original colour lithograph signed by Serge Vandercam. The copies on Vélin with a loosely inserted illustration by Vandercam printed in black and white.

Published by à l'enseigne de l'Arquebuse du Silence, Ostend.

Literature:

Jan Ceuleers, Marcel Broodthaers - The Complete Prints and Books, Galerie Ronny Van de Velde, Antwerp, 2012, p. 58-59, no. 27

Artist description:

Marcel Broodthaers began his career as a poet, making his first work of art—a sculpture consisting of his unsold books of poetry—at the age of 40. Broodthaers's work shows varied compositions between sculpting/constructions and poetry. His deep concern with language and linguistic conventions made him play with ideas and double meanings of words. He played with the authorship and uniqueness of the words which revealed the cultural stereotypes and symbols of national identity embedded in everyday forms of communication. He introduced language in his art and used some raw materials like the shells of eggs or mussels, but also furniture, clothing, garden tools, household gadgets and reproductions of artworks. Marcel Broodthaers stands out among the 'conceptual' artists who often employ philosophical language, but seldom with mastery. While most of his colleagues work away unhindered by this lack of knowledge, Broodthaers always knows more than he states. From beginning to end, he keeps mixing high and low culture in a way at once subtle and disruptive.